WILFLEY IS CUP WINNER

BANKER AND HIS WIFE GET FLOWER SHOW HONORS.

MISS BEAL IS SECOND

Annual Display Excellent, Considering Cool Weather.—Garden a Feature.—Open Tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Wilfley of Maryville won the first trophy cup to be awarded by the D. A. R. at the society's annual flower show, which is being held in the Armory building this afternoon and tonight. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfley's points totaled 115, according to the judges' sheets.

Miss Alice L. Beal of Maryville was a close second with 100 points, and Chilton Robinson's points reached a total of 85.

The Armory was an attractive place today with its many colored flowers. The arrangement of the blossoms drew many expressions of admiration from the large crowd which attended the affair, and the persons in charge were very well pleased with the exhibit, taking into consideration that this has been a rather cool spring.

Garden Is Beauty Spot.

One of the most attractive spots in the Armory today was the flower garden, just to the rear of the displays. One entered the garden through an open gate, walked up a little path which is lined on either side with pretty sod spotted here and there with shrubs and flowers, and finally came to an arch, from which refreshments were served. The garden was complete. Birds were everywhere and even an attractive bird bath had been placed on one side of the path.

Mrs. D. R. Baker, assisted by daughters of the Maryville chapter of the D. A. R., sold candy throughout the day. The candy table was on the west side and in the front part of the building.

Miss Bertha I. Beal was general chairman of the show this year. The judges were all from St. Joseph and are members of the St. Joseph Garden Club. Mrs. Charles Ozenburger, Mrs. G. Gerding, and Mrs. John Sheriman judged the roses; Mrs. R. M. Bachteller, Mrs. C. M. White, and Miss Ada Lyon judged the Iris; and Mrs. Frank Craver, Mrs. S. W. Rogers, Mrs. H. C. Geinitz, and Miss Mary Richert were judges of the peonies and other flowers.

Following is the list of prize-winners:

Former President of College Is Here

Dr. Ira Richardson Meets Old Friends, Now President of Colorado School.

Dr. Ira Richardson, who is president of Adams State Normal School at Alamosa, Colo., formerly president of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, was in Maryville today renewing friendships and visiting instructors at the College.

Mr. Richardson, who was a guest in the home of Senator and Mrs. M. E. Ford, had no statement to make except that he was "pleased to see the progress and improvements made at the College here."

Mr. Richardson came here as instructor at the College in 1911 and was president from 1913 to 1921. He came here last night from Mound City, where he visited some of his relatives Memorial Day.

AFTER AN AUTO CRASH

Woman Volunteers to Aid Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Stephens, Then Takes $80 and a Dress.

Mrs. G. C. Stephens today is suffering with injuries received in an automobile accident which happened Wednesday near Gower, and her husband is out about $80, which an alleged "nurse," who was to take care of Mrs. Stephens at St. Joseph, absconded with early Thursday morning.

Kansas City police have been on the trail of the woman, but Dr. Stephens said this morning she had not been taken into custody.

Dr. Stephens said that Wednesday he and Mrs. Stephens were driving from Kansas City to St. Joseph, with Mrs. Stephens at the wheel. A Yelloway bus approached and crowded their car to the side of the road, tearing off a fender and turning the Stephens' car over. Mrs. Stephens suffered a wrenched back and bruises about her head and body. Dr. Stephens suffered a bruise on his forehead.

When the bus stopped, a woman appeared on the scene and stated she was a nurse. She offered to take care of Mrs. Stephens, who suffered shock from the accident. The assistance was accepted and they went to St. Joseph, where Mrs. Stephens was given treatment by a physician at a hospital there, assisted by the supposed nurse.

The nurse had a room next to Stephens at the hotel. Thursday morning Dr. Stephens said he awoke early and noticed the door to the nurse's room was open. The woman had left after taking about $80 from Dr. Stephens' clothes and one of Mrs. Stephens' dresses. The hotel management was informed of the theft and notified the police.

It was learned the woman had taken a taxi to Kansas City, where police had located her rooming house.

Only Four Teachers Take Examinations

Tests to Continue Tomorrow.—State Fair Quiz Also to Be Given Then.

Only four persons were taking the teachers examinations conducted at the College this morning by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools. The examinations are given for first, second and third grade certificates.

Those who were taking the examinations this morning were Mrs. Pearl Meek, Burlington Junction; Mrs. Flossie Tanner, Burlington Junction; Hazel Sharp, Parnell; and George Judd, Pickering.

The competitive state fair examinations will be given tomorrow by Mr. Somerville at the College and the teachers examinations also will be continued over tomorrow.

SLAIN BY FIRE OF OFFICERS

IRA DAWSON, FORMERLY OF BURLINGTON, IS KILLED.

BODY BROUGHT HOME

Funeral Held Today for Young Man Accused of Liquor Law Violation in South Dakota.

The body of Ira Dawson of Flandreau, S. D., who was killed early Tuesday at White, near Brookings, S. D., in a gun fight with two deputy state sheriffs, was expected to arrive at Burlington Junction today for funeral services and burial.

Dawson was born near Burlington Junction April 8, 1904, and grew to manhood on the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dawson, west of Burlington Junction.

According to a dispatch from the Brookings (S. D.) Register, Dawson, known in the eastern part of South Dakota as a bootlegger, was trailed to a house in the outskirts of White, a small village in South Dakota, early Tuesday morning. The two deputy sheriffs ordered Dawson to put up his hands. Instead Dawson pulled a gun and fired at one of the deputies. Both officers returned the fire and Dawson fell fatally wounded with two wounds in his abdomen. He died three hours later.

A coroner's jury, after holding an all-day inquiry, returned a verdict that the officers shot in self defense.

The dispatch from the Brookings paper states Dawson had thirty gallons of alcohol in his car. He had been arrested a year ago by the same officers and served a jail sentence for rum running. An adultery charge was pending against him, the dispatch said.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson had lived at Flandreau, S. D., for the last three years, according to the Burlington Junction Post. They had visited at Burlington Junction only about a month ago with Dawson's parents. He was married about seven years ago to Miss Pearl Jewett of near Tarkio. Dawson is survived by his wife, two children, Ila Madge, age 5, and Lillian Jeane, age 3; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dawson of near Burlington Junction; and ten brothers and sisters, Anna C. Moore of Fairfax, Minnie Welt of Omaha, Everett Dawson of Rock Port, Blanche Cooper of Wyoming, Harry Dawson of Burlington Junction, Lucy Bendergraph of Atchison, Kan., Margaret Dewyre of Burlington Junction, and Bernice, Carl and Leland, who live with his parents.

The funeral services were arranged for 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Methodist church at Burlington Junction with the Rev. S. A. Wanless in charge. Burial was in Ohio cemetery.

Eight Members of Kansas Family Burn

Osborne, Kan., June 1.—Eight members of the family of Albert Kaser were burned to death in a fire which today destroyed their farm home 15 miles west of here.

Kaser and his wife and six children perished.

Origin of the fire had not been determined.

Harvey Moore, a neighbor of the Kasers, discovered the farm home in ashes. Bodies of the eight victims still were in bed, indicating that none had been warned of the fire.

An investigation was started immediately to determine if the fire had been of incendiary origin.

Farm Wet on Side; Dust Flies on Other

J. B. Nunnelley Couldn't Cultivate Part of 160 Acres, Too Wet; South Half Extremely Dry.

Too wet to cultivate the north side of his 160 acres and farm dust flying on the south half, was the report Judge Jesse F. Robertson heard today concerning the J. B. Nunnelley farm, a mile and a half west of the north edge of Maryville.

The rain of Thursday morning played tricks, being heavy in spots and then missing a strip or so. The corn on the farm couldn't be cultivated on the north side as the result of the rain. The south side was not touched by the rain storm and today was dusty. Byron Nunnelley lives on the farm.

State Labor Union Favors Modification

Springfield, Mo., June 1.—The Missouri State Federation of Labor was on record today as favoring modification of the Volstead act to permit making of beer with a 2.75 per cent alcoholic content.

In a resolution adopted unanimously by the federation convention Missouri delegates to the national presidential conventions were urged to work for a plank embodying that change in the law.

Several Arrests by Deputy Game Warden

Seven Persons Charged With Illegal Use of Seine.—Two In Liquor Case Also.

Several arrests for violation of the state game and fish laws have been made by District Deputy Warden John Wallace of Maryville. Last week he arrested Earl Gresham, William Jackson, Fred Mays and William Schoonover, who live on Big Lake, west of Bigelow, for seining out of season. Mays and his wife have been arrested by Holt county officers on liquor charges.

The charges against Gresham, Jackson, Mays and Schoonover will come up before Judge Parks at the October term of circuit court.

L. L. Bogard, Floy Tallman and Herb Smith of Fairfax were caught in the act of seining on the Old Nishnabotna river, north of Watson, by Warden Wallace on Wednesday. They were using a 210 foot tramel net 5 foot deep. The men were fined in justice court at Rock Port yesterday, the fine and costs amounting to $15.65 each.

Warden Wallace confiscated the net and will send it to the game department at Jefferson City.

A WARM MAY AND PLEASANT

TEMPERATURE ABOVE NORMAL, WITH NO EXTREMES.

PRECIPITATION IS LOW

Rainfall Lacks 2.83 Inches of the Term Mean, But Nothing Like Drouth of 1914.

May was a warm month, with considerably less rainfall than the average, according to the monthly compilation of records by J. R. Brink, official weather observer for Maryville and vicinity.

A mean temperature of 65.4 for the month just closed was 4.3 degrees above the normal, according to Mr. Brink, the term mean for May being 61.1 degrees. It was not the hottest May on record, however, falling 2 degrees under the record average of 67.4 degrees, established in 1896.

The lowest mean temperature for May was 55.6 degrees in 1907.

While the average last month was high, there were no excessive temperatures, the highest being 90 degrees on the 19th, compared to a record high of 96. Neither were there any exceedingly low temperatures, the thermometer dropping only to 43 and that on the first day of the month. The record low for the month was set in May 1909, when the mercury fell to 25 degrees on several days.

Precipitation for the month was 2.92 inches, compared to a normal of 5.75 inches, a high record of 12.38 inches, set in 1896, and a low record of .64 inch established in 1914.

The month had sixteen clear, seven cloudy and eight partly cloudy days, Mr. Brink's report showed.

Mrs. Henry Wachtel's Funeral to Be Sunday

Services at Methodist Church in Graham.—On Same Farm Since Marriage in 1874.

Mrs. Henry Wachtel, who died at her home two miles east of Graham at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was born January 5, 1851, in Clay county, near Liberty. She moved to Nodaway county when she was 20 years old and was married to Mr. Wachtel, December 24, 1874. Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel moved to the farm where Mrs. Wachtel died and had lived there since their marriage.

Of the four children all will be here for the funeral except Arthur of Whittier, Cal. Robert Wachtel, of Los Angeles, will arrive tomorrow. Lawrence Wachtel and his wife and Mrs. Lena Curnutt of Des Moines, Ia., were here at the time of Mrs. Wachtel's death.

She is survived by Mr. Wachtel and by fourteen grandchildren and four great grandchildren. One brother, William Walkup, lives at St. Joseph.

Mrs. Wachtel became a member of the Methodist church when she was 15 years old. She and Mr. Wachtel were members of the Mt. Zion church when it was organized in 1883 and remained members until the church closed a few years ago. They then joined the church at Graham.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist church at Graham at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Reverend Mr. Yetter, formerly pastor at Graham and Mt. Zion, will conduct the services. Burial will be in Graham cemetery.

To Attend M. U. Commencement.

Mrs. Alfred Jones, LeRoy Jones, Mrs. Raymond Jones, Mary Alice Jones and Miss Elizabeth Greeson will leave tomorrow for Columbia, where they will attend the commencement exercises of the University of Missouri. LeRoy Jones, who finished his course in the College of Agriculture at the end of the first semester in February, will receive his degree.

BEGIN LOWDEN DRIVE MONDAY

'FARM CANDIDATE' TO OPEN CONVENTION CAMPAIGN THEN.

BUTLER IS ON SCENE

Republican Chairman Arrives in Kansas City and Machinery Is Set in Motion.

Chicago, June 1.—Placing the farm relief issue squarely before the Republican national convention, former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois will open his convention campaign for the presidential nomination Monday in Kansas City.

Clarence F. Buck, Lowden's campaign manager, will open headquarters for the former governor and seek to rally behind him the leaders of the recent "Corn Belt revolt." Definite plans for Lowden's nomination were disclosed by Buck after a long conference with the Illinois favorite son.

Protests Continue.

Meanwhile, throughout the Middlewestern farm belt, agricultural interests continued today to hold protest meetings denouncing the veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill and warning the Republican party to give satisfaction to the farmers "or face defeat."

The Corn Belt committee, claiming to represent 1,000,000 Middlewestern farm votes, met in Des Moines to draft a formal protest against President Coolidge's action. The meeting will be followed by another in Kansas City shortly before the convention, where farm state delegates will organize to demand a strong agricultural plank in the party platform.

Five thousand northern Illinois farmers will meet in De Kalb tomorrow to take similar action.

To Be There Himself.

Lowden, Buck said, plans to arrive in Kansas City four days before the convention opens and to remain there as long as it lasts. The campaign manager said Lowden had received numerous letters from agricultural leaders asking his presence there to give leadership to the farm relief fight.

Otis F. Glenn, Republican nominee for Senator, will deliver the Lowden nominating speech at the convention, it was said.

Chairman Butler Arrives.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—The ponderous machinery of the Republican national convention began to function this morning with the arrival here of Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee and his coterie of secretaries and confidential advisers.

No sooner had Butler stepped from a Missouri Pacific train which brought him here from New York than he plunged into the details of the convention work. The coming of Butler and his aides was all that was needed to give convention activities an official color.

In Motion Immediately.

That he was in the mood for work was indicated by the fact that he had breakfast before his train had reached the union station. He was escorted directly to his headquarters at Hotel Muehlebach and immediately the convention machinery was set in motion.

Accompanying Mr. Butler were his secretary, James C. White; Joseph Le Gara of Boston, assistant to the chairman; Miss Renie R. Jeffrey, his stenographer, and Roy O. West, secretary of the national committee.

As is the custom with Mr. Butler while engaged in labors in behalf of his party, he declined to become embroiled in a discussion of presidential personalities. About the only thing he would admit was that a political convention is to be held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for president.

Contest Hearings Monday.

"I am here to help some 1,089 delegates from the states and territories to nominate a candidate for President and help them write a platform which the lucky candidate must espouse," said Butler.

The chairman said there would be some delegation contest hearings beginning Monday but he declined to say how long it would take the committee to dispose of the contests.

Prohibition Raiders Have Narrow Escape

Three Federal Agents in Nashville, Tenn., House When Boiler of a Distillery Explodes.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—Three federal prohibition raiders narrowly escaped death late yesterday afternoon when the boiler of a big distillery they were raiding exploded, completely destroying the house and still. The operator of the still escaped at the approach of the officers, but left the boiler in full blast.

Smithville Race Track Is Closed

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—Directors of the Smithville fair association announced today their race tracks will be closed for the remainder of the season.

Financial difficulties were blamed for closing of the Smithville races, although no definite statement was made by officials of the company.

The tracks may be re-opened in August, it was said.

MUST HURRY AID TO ITALIA

WEATHER IN POLAR REGIONS BECOMING WORSE.

GRIM EXPLORERS JOIN

Noted Figures of Other Icy Quests to Pool Efforts in Magnificent Rescue Attempt.

Oslo, Norway, June 1.—Weather in the polar ice regions which is daily becoming worse, makes it necessary to hurry help to General Umberto Nobile and his dirigible Italia, Roald Amundsen, the explorer, said in an interview today.

Amundsen said fogs especially are becoming denser and will hamper rescue work.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 1.—Stern men who have braved the rigors of the Arctic to extend scientific understanding to that zone joined today in a magnificent effort to save one of their select group, General Umberto Nobile and his aides of the dirigible Italia.

The Italia has been missing a week. It was shortly before noon last Friday that the dirigible reported it was making slow progress down from the north pole towards Kings Bay. Since then there has been only silence from the great aircraft.

Today such famous figures as Roald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth, Captain Riiser Larsen and others joined to help locate the polar dirigible.

All Are Veterans.

These illustrous men all are veteran explorers of that polar waste land where the Italia and its crew of sixteen men surely must have been forced down. Amundsen and Ellsworth have toured over the pole in a dirigible.

At the time of the Amundsen-Ellsworth flight, Nobile was a member of the crew. It was fitting that they should be selected by the Norwegian government to go in a rescue attempt for the grim-faced little Italian who aided them once on one of their northern adventures.

As understood now, Ellsworth, an American, will finance the airplane rescue expedition that Amundsen will head for the government. Capt. Riiser Hansen and Lieut. Luetzon Holm—the latter one of Norway's great fliers—will aid Amundsen. Lieutenant Dietrichsen, who has obtained leave from the navy flying corps to go to the south pole with Commander Richard E. Bird, has delayed departure to the United States so he may have a part in this flight.

To Select Relief Plane.

Dietrichsen will go to Friederickshaven Saturday from Oslo to select an airplane to be used in the relief expedition. It is expected that they will attempt to obtain a Dornier-Whale machine.

Dietrichsen will pilot the machine on the relief expedition.

Ellsworth will arrive in Oslo, probably about June 11, and shortly thereafter the circuitous tour of the polar regions will be undertaken, under the direction of the keen student of the north—Amundsen.

Meanwhile groups of Italia followers at Kings Bay—the crew of the Citta Di Milano and the landing crew that came here from Milan—waited eagerly for some report from the two groups of chausseurs landed on the north coast of Spitzbergen.

Tilden Wins in First Tilt of Zone Finals

Chicago, June 1.—Play in the finals of the American zone Davis Cup competition started at the Town and Tennis Club here today. William T. Tilden II, captain of the American team, defeated Tamio Abe, 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

PLANE TO HONOLULU

THE SOUTHERN CROSS LANDS AFTER 27½ HOURS.

FUEL NEAR DEPLETION

Four Airmen, En Route to Australia, Lost but Refuse to Despair.—Fiji Islands Next.

Wheeler Field, Honolulu, June 1.—Winning out in a close race against a rapidly diminishing fuel supply, the transpacific plane Southern Cross landed at Wheeler Field at 9:50 a. m. Honolulu time (12:20 p. m. P. S. T.) today.

When the wheels of the giant monoplane touched the runway of Wheeler Field, the first lap of the longest all-ocean flight ever attempted was completed.

But the margin of safety was a narrow one. The supply of gasoline in the fuel tanks of the plane was all but exhausted.

Once Lost Bearings.

Elapsed time for the flight was 27 hours, 28 minutes.

Precious gallons of gasoline had been used while the plane tried to determine its correct position and swing into the island of Oahu. At one time the ominous message came:

"Tell the destroyers to stand by. We may need them."

Captain Kingsford-Smith was at the controls of the ship as the Southern Cross touched Hawaiian soil.

With him were Charles T. P. Ulm, relief pilot, Lieut. Harry Lyon, navigator, and James Warner, radio operator.

The big monoplane made a perfect landing.

The Southern Cross was the fifth plane to cross the long air lane of 2,400 miles from Oakland, Cal., to the Hawaiian Island. Three other planes and their crews were lost in the same attempt.

Next to Fiji Islands.

The next lap of the great flight to be undertaken by the Southern Cross on its journey to Brisbane, Australia, is from Honolulu to Suva, in the Fiji Islands, a distance of 3,200 miles, the longest stretch over the open ocean ever attempted.

The Southern Cross took off from Oakland airport at 8:52 a. m. Pacific Coast standard time, yesterday.

The ship taxied to position in front of the reviewing stand. Five thousand people cheered wildly.

Kingsford-Smith was the first of the four men to step from the Southern Cross.

"We're not weary," he said smilingly, as Governor Farrington and other territorial officials came forward to greet him.

Followed Radio Beacon.

"We followed the radio beacon at San Francisco for the first 400 miles," Kingsford-Smith said.

Amid the din of whistles and bells, and the jubilant shouts of hundreds in the streets, the Southern Cross passed over the city of Honolulu at 9:35 a. m. Honolulu time, (12:05 p. m. Pacific Standard Time). As the roar of the great giant motors of the approaching plane was heard in the distance, office and factory workers ran to windows or poured into the streets to see the plane go by.

When the Southern Cross passed over Honolulu it was but twelve miles from its final destination, Wheeler Field, to the west of the city.

Sighted From Molokai.

San Francisco, June 1.—The navy radio station in San Francisco reported receipt of a message from the navy radio station in Honolulu saying the Southern Cross had been sighted from the Island of Molokai at 11:40 a. m. Pacific time.

Laugh at Danger.

The four men on board the Southern Cross remained firm in their faith that the craft would make a safe landing before the fuel was exhausted.

"It is about time we sighted Terra Firma," said a message picked up by the Mutual Wireless at 9 a. m. "Tell those destroyers we don't need them yet. Ha. Ha."

The Southern Cross had lost its bearings at 7:30 a. m., Honolulu time, today, according to the following radio message reported by the Mutual Wireless Company:

"We have lost our position. Please get other boats to stand by for our bearings."

The plane tried to give the position in which the crew then believed it was flying, but the message was garbled and could not be read.

Would Avoid Receptions.

Captain Kingsford-Smith sent word ahead that he was anxious to avoid formal receptions as much as possible, to spare the members of his crew the strain of such events.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

Congress has adjourned and the country still lives. It has been an active congress. It has done a great deal of work. It has put nearly 1,000 new laws on the books and it has spent a great deal of money. It has gotten out on reasonably good time and the members will hurry back to their districts and inspect their fences. We will hear more of their accomplishments and failures and sins of commission and omission as the months go by.

Those students of Jugo Slavia may be starting something their fathers can't stop. They may have reason for resentment against Italy but there ought to be a way to moderate youthful excitement with wisdom and judgment. This little mountainous section of the world started the recent world-wide war the horrors of which ought still to be fresh in their memories.

What Other Editors Say

Your True Worth

Your true worth is not measured in dollars and cents. There are plenty of men and women in this world who have real money, who are not worth much when it comes to measuring them by the real standard of life. The man or the woman who is so fortunate as to have much of this world's goods, can be a great blessing to humanity if he or she is inclined to use a portion of their means for the alfeviation of sorrow and pain, for the promotion of enterprises that make for the well-being of their fellow man. They are indeed benefactors of humanity and are worthy of the highest respect and esteem. But the miser who hoards every cent, who denies himself even the necessaries of life that his accumulations may grow larger, is no benefit whatever to the community in which he lives; he is too narrow, he has no correct vision of life, and hence is a detriment rather than a help to the people of the community.

It is a fine thing for men or women once in a while to turn the search light upon their own lives, and see what there is in them that will commend itself to their friends and neighbors. It is not necessary for you to have money to be worth-while in the community where you live, but it is necessary that you have the inclination and the determination to live such a life as will attract the attention of others to the fact that you are living a life worthy of emulation. You can give a portion of your time, at least, to public betterments and improvements, to the good of the community, and you will have performed a mission in life worthy of the highest respect and honor of your fellow men. You are worth just what you determine you shall be worth to your community, to your friends and to your neighbors. You are either setting an example that will gain their confidence, respect and esteem, or you are setting an example that will cause them to frown with displeasure upon you. It isn't what the tax assessor says you are worth in dollars and cents, but it is what you are worth in mind and character and determination to scatter sunshine and happiness in the pathway of others.—Hannibal Courier-Post.

Missouri U. Chemistry Professor Makes Tests on New Jersey Girls Suing for $1,250,000.

Columbia, Mo., June 1.—Electroscope tests made on the five Orange, N. J., factory girls who claim to have radium poisoning show no trace of radium in the girls, according to Dr. Herman Schlundt, professor of physical chemistry at the University of Missouri, who has just returned from Newark, where the tests were made.

Dr. Schlundt expressed disbelief of the radium poisoning theory advanced by the girls in their $1,250,000 suit against the United States Radium Corporation. The paint used to letter watch dials contains only one part radium to 40,000 parts of other matter, Dr. Schlundt says. "Such small amounts of radium could not harm anyone," he declared.

Dr. Schlundt's opinion is based on twenty years experience with radium, during which time he has had enough of the element in his body and clothing, he says, to destroy the accuracy of the electroscopes. These instruments are capable of detecting radium in quantities as small as one two-hundred thousandth of a gram.

While discrediting the theory that radium caused the malady which is affecting the jaw bones and hip bones of the girls, Dr. Schlundt thinks it probable that they may have been radio-active at one time, but have since lost all traces of the substance. Miss Grace Fyfer, one of the plaintiffs, is not radio-active now, according to Dr. Schlundt's tests, but was a year ago when tested by Dr. Frederick B. Flinn of Columbia University.

Radium poisoning is yet a theory, now about seven years old, and its supposed symptoms, according to Schlundt, are similar to those produced by phosphorous in match factory workers until the use of free prosphorous was prohibited. The girls were first thought to have been poisoned by phosphorous until it was found that the paint contained none of the chemical.

To Visitin Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Geist and daughter, Mrs. L. C. Maul, left this morning for Kansas City where they will visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geist's daughter, Mrs. Julius Lowry, and Mr. Lowry. Mr. and Mrs. Geist will visit over the week-end but Mrs. Maul will remain for an extended visit.

How Senate Looks From the Gallery

Rodney Dutcher Gives a Glimpse of National Celebrities as the Tourist Sees Them.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 1.—Stories having been written about what the Senate looked like in all-night filibuster session, one suspects it may also be interesting to describe its appearance in the daytime toward the close of the session. Anyway, there are always plenty of tourists in the galery who seem to consider the spectacle worth looking at.

Senator William Cabell Bruce is speaking as your correspondent, in the role of tourist, enters the press gallery. Senator Bruce doesn't exactly speak. He sputters, with a pause between every two or three words. It is as if he feels that having lost valuable time on each pause it's up to him to get out the next couple of words rapidly to make up. As usual, he wears a batwing collar with a dark gray suit. A stock man, with gray hair, mustache and gold specs. A most pleasant person, off the floor and unusually learned.

Heflin Easily Spotted.

One's eye soon spots Tom Heflin of Alabama because Tom is wearing a yellow cream summer suit, with yellow shoes. The other day, after one of his daily anti-Catholic speeches, a correspondent wrote that he had appeared wearing the papal colors with his face a cardinal red! He seems sunburned. Big flat black bow tie, nose glasses on a long shoestring and a masonic emblem are part of his makeup. His desk is piled a foot high with letters and papers.

Toward the rear is another voluble. Cole Blease, sometimes called Coal Blaze, of South Carolina, who always wears a pearl gray suit, matching his hair, mustache and bow tie. His creamy shirt shows to his belt line.

Reed Sad and Serious.

Jim Reed of Missouri, listening to Bruce attack his Mississippi barge proposals, sits cross-legged, wedged back into a corner of his chair and an arm over the back of it. Rather sad and serious, Jim looks. Beneath his silvery hair are his ruddy face, a baby blue tie and shirt of like color, but a white soft collar. As usual, he wears a gray tweed suit—and chews tobacco.

Senators Swanson and Glass of Virginia sit side by side, chinning. Swanson, with gold-rimmed nose glasses, large watch chain across his tummy and drooping mustachios resembles a middle-aged horse doctor. He has reputation among his brethren of knowing more about what's going on and what's coming off than any other man on Capitol Hill . . . . Glass, who acts, looks and talks like a peppery little gamecock, is nearly always dressed in black. His hair is white. His face always indicates pain except when he chuckles.

Several Bald Heads.

Transferring attention from the Democratic to the Republican side, one notes a number of bald heads en route. None of them extraordinarily distinguished heads. Just senators—Fess, Shortridge, Hayden, Harris and Metcalf . . . . Freddie Hale of Maine is losing his hair, one observes, but still has some.

Capper of Kansas is gliding about, thin almost to the point of emaciation, but with a youthful expression which goes with a large capacity for work.

Most senators appear to be wearing various shades of gray. The nattiest are in blue serge or worsted.

The Campaign Log

June 1—By United Press.

James Good, manager of the Hoover campaign, said the Midwestern farm revolt was not aimed at the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover but at President Coolidge.

Otis F. Glenn, Republican candidate for United States senator in Illinois, has been selected to place the name of Frank O. Lowden in nomination at the Republican national convention in Kansas City.

Senator Guy D. Goff and Governor Alfred E. Smith led in the tabulation of presidential votes from the West Virginia primaries. Goff led Herbert Hoover by about 7,000 votes while Smith had about a 3,000 vote lead over Senator James A. Reed.

Senate campaign investigating committee went to New York to hear additional witnesses concerning the primary expenditures of Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover. The committee was informed that thus far $653,756 has been spent by various presidential candidates.

Washington estimates said about 400 women would attend the Republican convention at Kansas City either as delegates or alternates and that some 500 would attend the Democratic convention.

Mrs. Norris Puts Home Life Ahead of Social Whirl

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth of a series on prospective "First Ladies," by Allene Sumner, writer for Democrat-Forum and NEA Service. Today's article deals with Mrs. George W. Norris, wife of the senator from Nebraska, who is a Republican presidential aspirant.

By ALLENE SUMNER
Staff Writer for Democrat-Forum and NEA Service

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The other Senate ladies say without any evidence of envious jealousy that Mrs. George W. Norris of Nebraska is the smartest senatorial lady of the whole kaboodle.

Not that they put it just like that. They say—

"It's so stimulating to meet Mrs. Norris," Or,

"Mrs. Norris certainly has an active mind." Or,

"However in the world does she manage to read so much and keep up on things the way she does?"

It's Really Simple.

The answer as Mrs. Norris herself gives it makes it seem very simple.

"The official social life here is so complicated," she says, "that one must face the situation and decide what is most worth while. One woman's choice, of course, would not be another's.

"For myself, I decided that time for reading, time with my children, time in the home with my husband, and time for sessions in Congress meant more to me than formal calls, teas, bridge, dinners, and all the cycle of social life here.

"Besides, it takes money to stay in the social swim. And we have never had any of that to spare above plain living expenses."

The Norrises live in a simple, small, but extremely attractive and cosy apartment in the Methodist Building, just across from the Capitol. It isn't considered quite smart to live "on the hill," but there again capable Mrs. Norris takes the situation in hand and decides that convenience and a regard for the senator's health and strength are much more important than 'a smart address."

The senator's health seems her main concern. She does not even have a full time housekeeper, preferring to do her own marketing and plan meals of foods which she knows the senator requires, sometimes even cooking them herself rather than leaving them to the maid who comes in.

There's an old-fashioned couch in the study where the senator lies down with his pipe after dinner every evening. Sometimes he sleeps. Sometimes he just rests while Mrs. Norris reads to him.

"We've just finished Dickens and Thackeray for the 'steenth time," smiled Mrs. Norris, telling of those evening reading fests. "We both love the old high school classics."

But Beck Sharp and Little Nell do not comprise the total book interests of the Norrises. We talked of "Mother India," and with all the modern talk about the truth and lack of truth in this book, I have heard from no one, professional critic or layman, such a keen analysis of the book as this almost obscure senatorial lady gave.

Mrs. Norris laughs that she's going back to school some day and finish her college education. She was principal of the McCook, Nebraska, schools when she married Senator Norris, then a district judge.

"I loved teaching," she says, "and I doubt if even marriage could have taken me from it if that marriage hadn't meant little children to be cared for."

For Senator Norris was a widower with three little girls, the youngest about 2, when he married Miss Ella Leonard, the school principal.

Mrs. Norris is a bit sensitive on any stepmother publicity, almost resentful of any remembrance that the children are not her own.

"They are my own—my very own children," she declares. "And I'm not speaking only theoretically, for I had two little boys of my own whom I lost, and I know that I never loved them a bit more than the three little girls. I hate admitting that they aren't my own. But it's the truth and there's nothing so important as truth."

Mrs. George W. Norris.

The first and second Mrs. Norris were school girl friends. Miss Leonard, the second and present Mrs. Norris, taught the three little Norris girls in Sunday school and loved them long before she ever dreamed of becoming their mother.

Her devotion to the "little girls," now all grown and married and with children of their own, is even more intense than that of most "real mothers," which she insists she is. Children's welfare and education, their reading, their amusement, seem to her the most important interest of any woman's life.

Senator Norris shares her interest and devotion to "the children." She told of the time when the senator left the children in Nebraska while he was in Washington, and of his distress when, returning home one time, one of the little girls didn't know him.

"That almost broke his heart," Mrs. Norris says, "and he said that if it cost every penny he made we'd have a home in Washington right away."

An Attractive Woman.

Mrs. Norris is one of the handsomest senatorial women in Washington, with her soft pink and white skin, white hair, brown eyes, and splendid carriage. She dresses extremely well and is so good a conversationalist and companion that people "do wish the Norrises would go out more."

But books and home and quiet evenings together and time for the Senate gallery and the art galleries are Mrs. Norris' choice. She's the sort that makes and takes her choice.

One can imagine no woman in official Washington better fitted with poise and intelligence and friendliness for the "First Lady' job than Mrs. George Norris of Nebraska.

Regional Institute Will Be Held Here

Tuberculosis Association Arranges for District Gathering on September 26 and 27.

The regional institute of the Tuberculosis Association will be held in Maryville September 26 and 27, Leslie G. Somerville, a member of the executive committee of the Nodaway County Tuberculosis Association, announced today.

Mr. Somerville said that the executive committee of the county association met last night and accepted the dates of the regional conference as fixed by the state association.

The regional institute will bring to Maryville physicians and educators in the district of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, and a program relative to the work of eradicating the "white plague" will be conducted by noted authorities.

The sessions of the institute will be held at the State Teachers College building.

The institute will be brought here at the invitation of the county tuberculosis association and the Nodaway County Medical Society. The county tuberculosis association at its meeting last night delegated Dr. C. W. Kirk of Hopkins to represent it at the state tuberculosis meeting, which will be held at Kansas City early in September.

Those who attended the meeting last night were Dr. Kirk, John Rush of Barnard, A. H. Cooper, Mrs. A. H. Cooper, Mr. Somerville and Dr. C. P. Fryer of Maryville.

Murdered by Kidnaper

NEA Toledo Bureau

Here is Dorothy Sielongoski, 7, of Toledo, O., who was dragged from her bed by a nocturnal intruder, kidnaped, murdered and her body thrown on her grandfather's porch. The girl was choked to death with a pair of bloomers which the slayer removed from her body and knotted around her neck.

Padlocks Saloons, Home Bombed

Lewis W. Powell (inset), district attorney for Kenosha county, Wis., padlocked thirty saloons and road houses in five months, and then his home was bombed. The picture shows how the side of the house was wrecked by dynamite. In the inset is Powell. He and his four children, sleeping in the home at the time, were not hurt.

She Gets $10,000 Year for Life

Miss Cline to Be First Woman Federal Judge If Senate Confirms Nomination.

By NEA Service.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Miss Genevieve R. Cline of Cleveland, who became one of the feminine world's "firsts" when President Harding made her appraiser of customs in 1922, may shortly step into one of the highest-priced and most important jobs ever held by a woman.

President Coolidge has nominated her judge of the U. S. customs court in New York. If the Senate confirms her nomination, she will find herself in possession of a $10,000-a-year life job—and will also be the first woman federal judge in the country.

Confirmation of the appointment would make her just about the most important woman in the country's public official life.

Expert on Tariff.

Miss Cline's career began some 25 years ago, when she was just growing up and wondering what she was going to do with herself. Her brother used to take her to tent mass meetings where the tariff was debated; the subject interested her, and she decided to become an attorney, specializing in tariff law.

She went to law school and, in due time, hung up her shingle and opened her own office. For a number of years she practiced steadily; she did not enter public life until she received her appointment as customs appraiser in 1922.

She has been holding that job ever since. The men who work under her in the customs office here insist that her "woman's intuition" has helped make her an expert.

Her "Hunches" Help.

For instance: a package from Hungary containing a loaf of bread came in the other day. Miss Cline "had a hunch"; she stuck a knife into the loaf and found concealed therein a bottle of liquor. Another time a harmless-looking chocolate egg appeared in a group of articles brought in to be appraised. Again Miss Cline "had a hunch"; she opened the egg and found in it a valuable diamond.

Her present job calls for a wide range of knowledge. The appraised must know the market prices of almost every imaginable article in every country on the globe. All of the imports that enter the Cleveland district pass before Miss Cline's eyes, and she must be able to tell promptly whether the valuation set on each one is proper.

The new job will be different. A customs judge decides protest cases brought by importers who object to valuations fixed by appraisers.

Oklahomans Visit in Pickering Vicinity

Mrs. Martha Wilson Accompanied by Three Others—Henry Pistole Seriously Ill.

By O. G. Null.

PICKERING.—Mrs. Martha Wilson of Enid, Okla., is visiting here this week at the home of her cousin, Mrs. W. T. Rutherford, and with other relatives in this vicinity. Mrs. Wilson is a daughter of Earl Fakes, one of the pioneer citizens of Union township, but who left this county and moved to Oklahoma over forty years ago. This is her first visit here since she moved with her parents to Oklahoma.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Pierson of Enid, Okla., and Floyd Fakes of Maryville, who has been visiting at Enid, accompanied Mrs. Wilson on her trip here. Mr. Pierson stopped at Savannah to consult a doctor in regard to a sore upon his face and was gratified to learn that it is not malignant as he had feared it might be.

The entire party will visit her a few days before returning to Enid.

C. O. Pistole went to St. Joseph Monday to visit his brother, Henry Pistole of Hopkins, who underwent an operation in the M. E. hospital at that place some two weeks ago and who has been in a very serious condition since that time.

A. L. Pistole of near Hopkins, a son of the sick man, accompanied Mr. Pistole to St. Joseph. They returned to their homes that evening.

Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Crowson drove to St. Joseph last Sunday and spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Maxwell, former Pickering residents. Mr. Maxwell and Dr. Crowson are cousins.

Mrs. Agnes Lunte and daughters, Misses Huldah and Ruth, drove to Highland, Kan., last Sunday, where they visited at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Heryford.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wiley and son, Dean, returned home last Sunday from Liberty, Mo., where they had spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hall, former residents of Pickering.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Florea and son, Faye, jr., drove to Savannah last Sunday and spent the day there with relatives from Kansas City, whom they met in Savannah by appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Fakes entertained at dinner Wednesday evening in celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Fakes, her brother, Lester Ringold, Howard Null and Arlie Shelman which occurred this week. Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ringold, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Null and daughter, Katherine, Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Shelman and daughter, Arlene, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Null, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Jones and children, Louise and Howard and the host and hostess.

The Rev. and Mrs. T. M. Walton and family and Mr. Walton's mother, Mrs. T. M. Walton, sr., of Skidmore, drove to Shenandoah Tuesday and visited the radio broadcasting stations at that place. On Wednesday they drove to Skidmore, taking Mrs. Walton, sr., to her home there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Birkenholz moved Thursday from the Charles Garten place to the property of Mrs. A. H. Leech, one block north of the Wray Hardware Co. building.

Mrs. Howard Null returned Sunday evening from Guilford, where she had been visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Thompson, and with other relatives for a few days. She was accompanied to Guilford by their daughter, Katherine Null.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Wray of Hamburg, Ia., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Wray at dinner on Wednesday and in the afternoon both families attended memorial services at Myrtle Tree.

O. R. Saundres shipped a load of hogs of his own raising to St. Joseph last Monday and he accompanied the shipment. His hogs sold at very satisfactory prices considering the condition of the market.

Fred Wray shipped a load of butcher stuff on Monday and Rufus Ringold a load of hogs of his own raising on Thursday.

A splendid shower, variously estimated at from three-fourths of an inch to an inch, fell here early Thursday morning and will be of great benefit to crops of all kinds. The shower was rather local in extent and seemed to center near Pickering.

The rainfall was not so heavy in Bloomdale and Long Branch neighborhoods, though a nice shower fell there also.

SIX PAIRS OF TWINS AT THE COLLEGE

Four of "Sets" Last Term Were Girls, One "Mixed," And One Pair Boys.

State Teachers College professors found themselves in the same dilemma this year that teachers in the Maryville high school faced two years ago. This dilemma was—twins.

An investigation shows that six pairs of twins were enrolled at the College. Four of these were girl twins and one pair consisted of a boy and a girl, another of two boys. Four of the pairs lived in Maryville, one in Bedford, Ia., and one in Burlington Junction.

In a few of the cases little trouble was found in distinguishing the twins from each other but in other cases it caused guess work.

The twins were:

Neva and Nina Bruce, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bruce of Maryville.

Ollie and Leona Whitaker, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Whitaker of Bedford, Ia.

Florence and Catherine Wray, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wray, Maryville.

Nettie and Nellie Russell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Russell, Maryville.

Donald and Dorothy, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Russell of Maryville.

Ray and Roy Ferguson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferguson of Burlington Junction.

Eight pairs of twins were enrolled in the Maryville high school two years ago.

Will Face Bad Check Charge in St. Joseph

The hearing of Harry Freemyer of Maryville, charged with obtaining money on a bogus check, has been set for June 8 in a St. Joseph justice court, according to the St. Joseph News-Press. The check, cashed by Harrie Jones, druggist, was for $26, according to the information filed.

Fred Sturm in Car Accident; None Hurt

An automobile accident Wednesday afternoon between Rosendale and Savannah did some damage to two cars driven by Fred Sturm of Maryville and W. J. Stanton of Rosendale. The car driven by Stanton hit Sturm's Chevrolet and crushed both fenders and marred the finish on the left side of the car.

No one was hurt.

FISH A LURE TO PRESIDENT

TROUT PLENTIFUL NEAR SUMMER WHITE HOUSE.

ON ONE-ACRE ISLAND

Executive's Business Offices Probably Will Be Established in Superior, 28 Miles Away.

Washington, June 1.—The call of the fisherman's hook and line will take President Coolidge to the northwestern tip of Wisconsin for his summer vacation.

The summer white house will be established on the island estate of the late Henry Clay Pierce in the Brule river, about six miles from Brule, Wis., a characteristic middle-western hamlet of meager population.

While the Brule itself is not more than a narrow stream, it abounds in rainbow trout; and enthusiastic reports of the piscatory excellence of the general Wisconsin region were deciding factors in Mr. Coolidge's selection of the vacation site.

Waters Swarm With Truot.

First, Col. E. W. Starling of the executive secret service staff, who personally inspected the site, along with other possible summer locations, and later Former Senator Lenroot, who owns a neighboring estate, extolled the unlimited range for the chief executive's hook and line in northwestern Wisconsin. According to the reports that were carefully reviewed by the President, streams in this region swarm with both rainbow and stream trout, while the several nearby lakes offer Pickerel, bass and northern pike.

The President has an acute penchant for trout fishing, and one of the conditions of his summer home was that its nearby streams be heavy with trout.

Commodious Bungalow.

The summer white house itself will be "Cedar Island Lodge," a commodious bungalow situated on a one acre island.

All of the buildings are equipped with electric light and power; telephone service, heating plants, and other facilities that customarily go with modern city homes. A private train station, "Winnebouhou," is about a mile from the lodge.

While the elevation of 1,000 feet above sea level is not so much as the President would like, this discrepancy was minimized in the consideration of favorable climatic conditions and the natural beauty of the region. The summer nights are cool, and the days are reasonably comfortable.

Because of the limited accommodations, the United States army will provide and erect tent houses for members of the secret service. The only quarters available besides those for the executive party will house fifteen servants and two chauffeurs.

Resembles Last Year's.

In its general outlay, the remote site of this summer's white house bears a striking resemblance to the white house maintained last summer in the South Dakota Black Hills. The nearest sizeable town is Superior, Wis., 28 miles distant. Last year the President's summer home, at the State Game Lodge in Custer National Park, was some 35 miles from Rapid City, S. D., where the business offices were located.

Plans now are under way to open the executive business offices in Superior, probably in a school structure on a non-arterial highway.

The exact date for the President's departure for the west has not been announced. However, the President is anxious to leave directly after the budget meeting schedule for June 11. In all probability, he will be on his way before June 15.

Cow Is Money-Maker for Barnard Owner

Lee Burns Markets Shorthorn at 10½ Cents.—Raised Eight Calves Bringing $60 to $85.

Lee Burns, west of Barnard, sold a Shorthorn cow May 1 which holds the record as a money maker, Mr. Burns believes.

Mrs. Burn's father, Jeff Elliott, gave Mr. and Mrs. Burns the cow when they were married. It was 8 years old then. They have kept the cow 7 years. In that time it has raised 8 calves, including one pair of twins, and the calves brought from $60 to $85 each.

When Mr. Burns marketed the cow May 1, she weighed 1610 pounds and he received 10½ cents a pound, the highest price in that class on the beef market.

MONUMENTS AND MEMORIALS

Comment on the Uniform International Series for June 3, 1928. Read Mark 14.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

There are three memorials which I have visited which are shrines, each one of them, for millions of people. One of these is at the Arlington cemetery in Washington, D. C., another beneath Napoleon's triumphal arch at Paris and the third in Westminster Abbey in London.

No name is carved on the stone at either of the three, yet every day many visit these shrines, place flowers there, perhaps kneel for a moment and offer an inarticulate prayer. The memorials are each known as "The Grave of an Unknown Soldier." Thus they are each one symbolic. The body at either may be that of your boy who left so proudly for the war and of whom you have never heard.

When I visited these shrines, each at widely separated times, the same thoughts came to me in France and England as in Washington. The picture of the awful war through which the three nations came, fighting side by side, the white crosses row by row in Flanders field, the vacant homes in all the countries engaged in that war, and a little prayer for the symbol of the "Grave of an Unknown Soldier."

All over this land in almost every village, as in other lands, are war memorials. In the court house yards are guns which were captured from the Germans, two such guns are in the court house yard in my town. A Greek woman said to me not long ago on seeing a group of these guns, "Faugh, how incongruous, guns captured from a conquered foe used as a memorial of peace. It is a memorial of war and a brag of victory." I think she was right about it. I have seen many ugly, inartistic memorials and monuments, memorials which brought no real thought of the awful time through which the world passed, and I knew that they failed of their purpose. I wish every captured gun could be hidden from sight. We are not meaning to brag about winning the war, we are remembering the young men who died and the patriotism, the lofty love of country which brought them to die willingly if necessary.

The ceremony which Christians everywhere observe, which we call The Lord's Supper, or the Communion Service, is a memorial, not of the death of Jesus, but of his life and his everlasting presence among us. It is not a memorial of defeat hidden in the grave, but a memorial of life which the grave could not hold, of victory over death and a promise to us.

There are four accounts in the New Testament of the "Last Supper, in each of the synoptic gospels and in the Acts. From these accounts we piece out, using a little from each one, the ceremony of the Lord's Supper as we observe it.

If it does not mean to you a confession, a retrospective thought of your own life, a prayer for forgiveness, you have missed something of the glory of this communion of Christians. I do not say the observance of this feast has been worthless to you unless you have these thoughts, I do not believe anyone can join in this ceremony without being helped, but I mean that you have not received from it the most which is there for you.

About the Lord's table there is a solemnity of worship and I think we all go away as we sing a hymn together with our souls a little sweeter and our lives a little better.

About the table when Jesus ate the bread and drank the wine, his last meal with his disciples, their observance of the ancient Jewish paschal feast, there were all kinds of feelings pent up in the minds and hearts of the disciples. They were disappointed and discouraged. Only four days before on Palm Sunday it seemed that their greatest hopes were to be realized, that Jesus would be proclaimed king and would take over the government and banish the Romans. They walked behind him as he rode between lines of excited humanity, cheering and shouting for him as their king. Nothing happened. He came into Jerusalem and left Jerusalem and the city still stood, the Romans still ruled in the palace and the high priest in the Sanhedrin. The great opportunity had passed and he had not taken advantage of it.

At that table also were dark brows and scowling looks at John and James who had demanded precedence. The disciples were divided, they would not speak to one another, none was willing to perform the little courteous things which went before every meal. Jesus came, girded a towel about himself and shamed them all.

At that supper Jesus told them that one of them should betray him. He did not designate Judas for, according to the ancient custom, they all dipped with him in the dish. Horror swept over the minds of these Orientals, not so much that Jesus was to be betrayed but because one who had broken bread as a guest at a table should do this thing.

Christians have adopted the ceremony as a symbol of Jesus, his life, what he taught, and made it a part of our ritual as Christians. We gather together every week or every month or every three months and renew our pledges of faith, bring to the table our battered hearts, remember Jesus, remember the last supper, remember that Jesus lived and does live and we go away, someway, somehow, we do not know why, feeling a peace and a surety we did not know before.

I once sat for some years under a preacher who sternly, before we we should partake of the bread and wine, always warned us not to eat it unworthily. He spoke as if a sinner who should partake of the sacred emblems would be stricken dead as were Sapphira and Ananias. I was shocked when I first heard that preacher and passed the emblems by. But I adjusted myself before the next communion and never permitted his strange warnings to have any effect. I think he was wrong, I think he gave a wrong idea of the Lord's supper, I think he should not be permitted to preside at the table until he changes his formula. To me this ceremony does not mean a threat, it means a blessing. If only sinless saints should partake of the Lord's supper there would be no one there and at the last supper, at which Jesus presided, he would have been alone.

When we gather solemnly and thoughtfully to take the communion in our churches to each one of us comes the thought "Is it I?" Have we in our lives betrayed our Lord? Are we now living the life he would have us live? Do we go out into the business mart every day and sell Our Lord by our methods of business or trade?

Then as we think of the symbols and what they mean our prayer is for confession and forgiveness and promise.

Is prayer answered? Go in this spirit to the Lord's Supper and when you leave the house of worship you will know that prayer is answered.

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH.

Lesson Text—Mark 14:17-25, 32-36. Read Mark 14:1-42.

17. And when it was evening he cometh with the twelve.
18. And as they sat and were eating, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, One of you shall betray me, even he that eateth with me.
19. They began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I?
20. And he said unto them, It is one of the twelve, he that dippeth with me in the dish.
21. For the Son of man goeth, even as it is written of him: but woe unto that man through whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had not been born.
22. And as they were eating, he took break, and when he had blessed, he brake it, and gave to them, and said Take ye: this is my body.
23. And he took a cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave to them: and they all drank of it.
24. And he said unto them, This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many.
25. Verily I say unto you, I shall no more drink of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.
32. And they came unto a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith unto his disciples, Sit ye here, while I pray.
33. And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be greatly amazed and sore troubled.
34. And he saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; abide ye here, and watch.
35. And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass away from him.
36. And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; remove this cup from me; howbeit not what I will, but what thou wilt.

35 ENROLL IN BIBLE SCHOOL

LARGE INCREASE EXPECTED WHEN WORK BEGINS MONDAY.

SCHEDULE IS FRAMED

Daily Vacation Classes to Be Held From 9 to 11:30 a. m.—Room for More Boys.

Thirty-five children of Maryville enrolled this morning in the Daily Vacation Bible School, which will open Monday at the Washington school building, to be conducted throughout this month. Late enrollments are expected to increase the number considerably.

"The outlook is very bright," the Rev. R. A. Mitchell, superintendent of the school, said.

Children who have yet to enroll should be on hand by 9 o'clock Monday morning, ready to begin work in earnest, Mr. Mitchell added.

A faculty meeting was held this morning and the following schedule adopted:

9:00-9:10—Worship.
9:10-9:30—Memory work and music.
9:30-9:45—Recreation.
9:50-10:20—Bible study.
10:25-11:10—Craft work.
11:15-11:30—Assembly.

The worship period is similar to the worship period at the opening of Sunday school. The day's activities are begun in the spirit of worship and reverence.

The memory work and music consists in memorizing scripture verses and passages and learning the standard hymns.

All recreation is under the supervision of a capable leader.

The Bible study period is devoted to teaching the child parables and stories and character sketches found in the scriptures and more or less familiar to adults.

During the daily general assembly, each department is responsible for the program on certain days.

The assembly period on Friday is set aside for the ministers and other Christian workers outside of the school.

It will be of interest to the boys to know there will be room for twenty boys in craft work this year. Oren Masters is the instructor and is anxious to have a large class.

CHOSEN BISHOPS BY METHODISTS

NEA Kansas City Bureau.

Just before the Methodist-Episcopal general conference closed in Kansas City the other day, these four men were elected bishops. Left to right they are: Bishop Raymond J. Wade, Chicago; Missionary Bishop Edwin F. Lee, Singapore; Bishop E. Stanley Jones, South Africa; Bishop James C. Baker, Urbana, Ill. Following his election Bishop Jones resigned, declaring his election was the result of "emotional enthusiasm" and saying he did not wish to leave his present post. The conference then consecrated the other three.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON : : : : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

AT THE HOME OF SIMON THE LEPER

Shortly before his betrayal, Jesus and his disciples went each evening to the little town of Bethany on the Mount of Olives. There, safe from interruption, they were entertained by Martha and Mary, sisters of Lazarus, whom Christ had raised from the dead.
On one of these evenings, the little band were taken to the home of Simon the Leper, who is believed to have been cleansed of this dreadful affliction by a miracle performed by Jesus.
As Christ lay on the couch beside the table, Mary came to him bringing an alabaster flask filled with nard, a precious ointment. Breaking the costly container, she poured the perfume on his head and feet and wiped them with her flowing hair. "Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred shillings and the money given to the poor" Judas Iscariot demanded. "The poor ye have always with you, but me ye have not always." Christ returned. "She hath anointed my body beforehand for the burying."

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE — By ANNE AUSTIN, AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Ward of the state orphanage since she was four, SALLY FORD is "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON the summer she is 16. He also hires DAVID NASH athlete and student, for summer work. When Carson makes remarks about David's friendship for Sally, David deals him a terrific blow.

They run away and join a carnival, David as cook's helper and Sally in a sideshow disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer. In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized when the orphans troop in, chaperoned by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful." Sally learns from ARTHUR VAN HORNE, a handsome easterner visiting in Capital City, that the "Lady Bountiful" is ENID BARR, wife of a wealthy New York man.

One night Sally goes to the show train to visit David and returns alone through the dark streets. A car draws up beside her and Van Horne helps her in and drives her to the show grounds. He tells her that Enid Barr believes her to be Sally Ford and is working to have her returned to the orphanage. As they near the show grounds, Van Horne leans forward and in flattering tones tells Sally she has a big future as a musical comedy actress and that he wants to take her to New York and give her a year in a dramatic and dancing school.

In another state Sally and David go about the streets without fear of being detected by the police. David gives Sally a sapphire engagement ring. MRS. STONE, matron of the orphanage, gets word that Sally is with the carnival and she travels to the next state to bring her back. Gus sees her jerk the veil from Sally's face and gives a signal. During a melee in which Mrs. Stone is accused of stealing a purse and is taken away by a "schiller" sheriff, Sally escapes. Hastening to David she tells him what has happened and he agrees they must run away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII.

"Oh, let's say goodby to the carnival!" Sally cried, homesickness for the dearest "family" she had ever known already tightening her throat with tears.

And so they paused, hand in hand, on the crest of the little hill which rose at the end of Main Street, on which Winfield Bybee's Bigger and Better Carnival was selling temporary joy and excitement to villagers and farmers weary of the insular monotony of their lives.

There it all lay just below them—big tents and little tents with gay, lying banners; the merry-go-round with its music box grinding out "Sweet Rosie O'Grady;" the ferris wheel a gigantic loop of lights. The composite voice of the carnival came up to these two children of carnival who were deserting it, and the roar, muted slightly by distance, was like the music of a heavenly choir in their ears.

"Listen!" Sally whispered, her fingers closing tensely over David's arm. "Gus, ballyhooing The Palace of Wonders. I wonder if he'll remember to spiel about 'Princess Lalla'."

They could see him, a small figure from that distance, looking like a Jack-in-the-box as he waved his arms and thundered the dear, familiar phrases which Sally would never forget if she lived to be a hundred.

She was about to run back down the hill, but David strode after her and put his arms about her comfortingly. "Sally, honey, we haven't time! Throw them a kiss from here, and then we've got to hurry away."

She broke from his embrace and flung her arms out in a passionate gesture of love and farewell. "Goodby, Carnival. Thank you for sheltering David and me! Goodby, Pop Bybee and Mrs. Bybee! Goodby, Gus! Goodby, Jan! Goodby, Noko! Goodby, Boffo! And Babe! Goodby, dancing girls! I hope you all land on Broadway with Ziegfeld. Oh, goodby, Pitty Sing, dear little Betty! Goodby, goodby!" Then she flung herself upon David's breast and held him tight with all the strength in her thin young arms. "I've only got you now, David! Oh, David, what is going to become of us? Do you really love me, darling?"

She strained away from him, to search his beloved face as well as the darkness of the night would permit. Faintly she could see the tremble of his tender, deeply carved lips, so dearly boyish. His eyes looked big and black in the night, but there was a gleam of such divine light in them that her fingers crept up his face tremblingly and closed his eyelids, for she suddenly felt abashed, unworthy of his love.

"I love you with every cell in my body, every thought in my mind and every beat of my heart," David answerely huskily. "And now let's travel, honey. I don't know where we're going, but we've got to put as much distance as possible between us and this town before morning."

But before they set off again he kissed her, not one of the long,ardent kisses that made her dizzy and frightened even as they exalted her, but a shy, sweet touching of his lips to her forehead. It was as if he were telling her, wordlessly, that she would be utterly safe with him through the long, dark hours ahead of them.

They did not talk much as they walked steadily along the dirt roads, choosing them in preference to the frequented paved highway, for David cautioned her to save her breath for the all-important task of covering many miles before daybreak. Neither of them had any idea of the geography of this state to which the carnival had brought them, but they felt that it mattered little. David, country-bred, had an instinct for direction. He had chosen to turn toward the east, and Sally trotted along by his side, supremely confident that he would lead her out of danger.

"One o'clock, darling," he announced at last, when Sally was so tired that she could hardly put one foot before the other. "We'll rest awhile and then plod along. There's a farmhouse near. See the cows lined up by the fence? We'll find a well and have a drink."

A three-quarters moon rode high in the sky but its light was intermittently obscured by ragged, scudding clouds. When they had had their drink of ice-cold cistern water David made a pillow of his coat which he had been carrying over his arm, and forced Sally to lie down for a while in the soft loam of a recently ploughed field.

He sat at a little distance from her, not touching her, his knees drawn up and clasped by his strong, tanned hands, but his head was thrown back and his eyes brooded upon the cloud-disturbed beauty of the night sky.

"Does your shoulder hurt, darling?" Sally asked anxiously.

"No," he answered, without looking at her. "It's all healed. Just a flesh wound, you know."

The tone of his voice silenced her. She knew he was brooding over their future, puzzling his young head as to what he was to do with her, and she lay very still, humble before his masculinity.

"I've been thinking, Sally," he said at last, gently. "First, we'll get married in the morning, or as soon as we find a county seat, and then—"

"But David," Sally sat up, her heart pounding with joy, but her mind unexpectedly clear and logical, "we mustn't, darling. You've got to finish college, somehow, somewhere—I can't bear to be a burden upon you! You're so young, so young!"

"I'm going to take care of you," David answered steadily. "We love each other and I think we always will. My father married when he was 19, and I'm nearly 21—and big for my age," he added, grinning at her. "We can't go on like this, honey. Mrs. Stone would have a right to think the worst of us—of you—if we were not married when she catches up with us. She would be justified in thinking that Clem Carson told the truth to the police when he charged us with—with immorality. Don't you see, darling, that we just must be married now?"

"Then I'll run away by myself!" Sally flashed at him, springing to her feet. "I'm not going to have you forced into marriage when you're not old enough and not really ready for it. You'd hate me for being a drag on you—"

"Sally!" David was on his feet now and his stern voice checked her before she had run a dozen steps away from him. "Come here!"

She crept into his arms, and laid her head against his chest, so that his heart beat strongly and steadily just beneath her ear.

"Listen, Sally, beloved," he urged softly. "I want to marry you more than anything in the world. It might have been better if we had met and fallen in love when we were both older, but fate took care of that for us, and I'm only proud and happy to be able to ask you now to marry me. I'll not make much money at first, maybe, but neither of us has been used to a great deal, and I promise you now that I'll not fail you in love and loyalty. I've never cared for any other girl and I never will. Let's not try to look too far ahead. We're young and strong and in love. Isn't that enough, sweet?"

"Yes," she agreed, nodding her head against his breast.

"Then let's travel," he laughed jubilantly. "This is our wedding day, Sally! Think of it, sweet! Our wedding day!"

As they plodded hand in hand through the long hours before dawn, Sally thought of nothing else. She was glad that walking made talking a waste of energy, for she wanted to think and feel and search her heart and soul for treasure to lavish upon the boy-man she was to marry.

Marriage! The word made her feel shivery and solemn and more than a little frightened, but when a shudder of fear made her hand twitch in David's, the firm, warm pressure of his fingers reassured her. She resolutely forced her mind away from the mysteries that lay ahead of her, mysteries at which Mrs. Stone had hinted in that last, embarrassing lecture she had delivered to a cowering, shamefaced Sally the day Clem Carson had taken her to the farm. Whatever lay before her, David would be with her, gentle, sweet, infinitely tender—

"I'll be Mrs. David Nash," she told herself childishly. "I'll be David's wife. I'll have David for my family, and maybe—some day—there'll be a baby, David, with hair like gold in the sun—"

"You'll have to tell a fib about your age, honey," David interrupted her thoughts, his voice grave and, it seemed to her, a little embarassed. Maybe, David, too, was frightened a bit, just as she was! That made it easier. She was suddenly jubilantly glad that he was not wise and sophisticated and very much older than she, like Arthur Van Horne, for instance.

"I'll have to say I'm 18, won't I?" she laughed. "Do I look 18, David? Now that most girls have bobbed hair, my long hair ought to make me look very old and dignified. I do look 18, don't I, David?"

"Oh, Sally!" David stopped abruptly and held her close to him, pityingly. "You look the adorable baby that you are! I pray to God that marrying me won't make you old before your time! Why, honeychild, you haven't had any girlhood at all, or childhood either! You should have dozens of sweethearts before you marry—go to theaters and parties and dances for years and years yet, before you settle down."

"Then I shan't settle down," Sally laughed shakily. "I'll be a giddy flapper, if you'd rather! Ah, no, David! I want to be a good wife to you! But we won't get old and serious. We'll work together and play together and study together and hobo all over the country together when we feel like it. I think we make good hoboes, don't you?"

"Not at this rate," David laughed, relieved. "I'm not going to kiss you a single other time before dawn, or we'll never get anywhere. And don't you try to vamp me, you little witch!"

He did not quite keep his promise, for when Sally became so tired about four o'clock in the morning that she could walk no further, he picked her up in his big muscled young arms, and strode proudly into the dawn with her, and of course the best antidote for fatigue and sleepiness was an occasional kiss on her drooping eyelids or upon her babyishly lax, pink little mouth.

When the sun came up they were a little shy with each other, inclined to talk rapidly about trivial things.

"Canfield—two miles," David read from a sign-post at a cross-roads. I'm going to ask that truck driver the name of the nearest county seat, and how to get there."

Sally watched him proudly as he ran swiftly, apparently not at all fatigued after seven hours of hiking, to hail a dairy truck approaching along the state highway. The sun was in his tousled chestnut hair, turning it into gold, and the bigness and splendid beauty of his body thrilled her to sudden tears of joy that he was hers—hers. Her heart offered up a prayer: "Please God, don't let anything happen so that we can't get married today! Please!"

(To Be Continued)

The marriage license is obtained in the next chapter. Will Sally's dream come true?

Beef Steers Regain Losses at St. Joseph

Butcher Hogs Also Rally But Remain Slightly Below Week Ago—Lambs Up 25 Cents.

So. St. Joseph, Mo., June 1. — Beef steers registered 25c to 50c gains and recovered most of the downturns noted last week, according to the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics weekly review. Medium and heavy weight beeves which took the greatest decline in the previous period, likewise showed the best gains on the comeback. Yearling trade lacked the snap evidenced recently but received sufficient call to justify steady to 25c higher values and yearlings together with light steers continued to slightly outsell comparable grade weighty bullocks. Choice yearlings and beeves scaling below 1,100 lbs. reached $14 and the majority of fed steers and yearlings turned at $12 to $13.50 with the best medium weights up to $13.85. Light weight heifers shared yearling trends with load lots up to $13.25. Other she stock maintained steady values although grassy cows proved hard to move. Most beef cows cashed at $8 to $10. Bulls lost 25c largely and medium grades found $8.50 hard to reach. Veals continued to carry a top at $13.50. Replacement cattle demand displayed greater breadth and mostly 25c higher rated developed. Choice kinds were eligible around $12.-75 and little grading good in the steer line had to go below $11.25.

HOGS.

Butcher values rallied during late rounds but remained slightly below par with a week ago. Choice 210-lb. butchers topped late at $9.60 and the bulk of 190 to 330 lb. averages changed hands at $9.25 to $9.50. Packing sows ruled 25c lower and ranged from $7.75 to $8.50.

SHEEP.

Light receipts brought 50c to 75c advances for spring lambs and matured lambs and yearlings gained fully 25c compared with a week ago. Aged stock remained unchanged. Top Idaho springers reached $19, the high point for the year. Native offerings bulked at $17.50 to $18.25. Clipped lambs sold up to $16.25 and yearlings commanded up to $15.50. Shorn ewes topped at $8.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, June 1.—Unexpectedly bullish crop reports by private experts sent wheat sharply higher on the board of trade today. Corn rallied from an opening break, while oats dropped late in the day.

At the close wheat was up 1⅝ to 2¼c; corn was up ⅛ to ½c and oats was unchanged to ⅜c down. Provisions closed lower.

Reports of private experts on wheat prospects indicate a yield of 513,000,000 bushels of winter wheat, and 252,000,-000 bushels spring wheat, a total of 765,000,000 bushels as compared with 871,000,00 last year. Buying developed after the publication of the reports and a rally followed an early break. The tone was steady. The cash market, with receipts of 10 cars, was ½c higher.

There was no news in corn other than continued optimistic private crop reports. The cash market was unchanged to ½c lower with receipts of 135 cars.

Oats held steady with little change and no news. The cash market was unchanged. Receipts were 21 cars.

Provisions were lower.

FIVE-WAY TIE MAY BE SEEN

UNIQUE SITUATION CAN RESULT IN COUNTY GAMES SUNDAY.

COMETS TO QUITMAN

Maryville Team Has Assignment of Dragging the League Leaders Back With the Pack.

Sunday's Games.
Maryville at Quitman.
Hopkins at Bolckow.
Burlington at Clearmont.
Barnard at Guilford.

The standings in the Nodaway county league Sunday either will become a jumbled-up affair once more or one of the teams will strike out to a bigger lead. Maryville will travel to Quitman, to play the league leaders. Quitman has won four games and lost one, while Maryville is tied with Hopkins, Clearmont and Barnard with three games won and two lost.

Should the Comets win at Quitman and Hopkins, Clearmont and Barnard all return with victories, the fans would have the unusual spectacle of five teams in a tie for first place. On the other hand, a Quitman win would give the leaders a more secure grip on the top rung of the ladder, and Bolckow, Guilford and Burlington Junction may decide to better their own standings at the expense of Hopkins, Clearmont and Barnard.

The Quitman battery will be Inman and Tobin and for Maryville Laughlin and Carmichael.

From the reports of the game which Maryville won at Clarinda Wednesday, the Comets have settled down and are playing a good brand of ball. Bill Laughlin had "everything" on the ball against the Iowans and with the steady Delmar Carmichael to hold the youthful hurler in check, a good combination for a Maryville battery has been found.

The if column:

Team	Won	Lost	If Win	If Lose
Quitman	4	1	.833	.666
Maryville	3	2	.666	.500
Hopkins	3	2	.666	.500
Clearmont	3	2	.666	.500
Barnard	3	2	.666	.500
Bolckow	2	3	.500	.333
Burlington	1	4	.333	.166
Guilford	1	4	.333	.166

Maitland Bowlers Win a Close Match

After twice losing, the Maitland bowling team came over to Maryville Tuesday night, and, although losing two out of the three games played, won on total number of pins, 2329 to 2320. Hiley of Maryville was high ten with 197 and high thirty with 510. Stevens of Maitland was high thirty for his team and Summers was high ten. The score:

MAITLAND.

Simpkins	171	136	150	457
Ross	150	117	163	430
Summers	159	196	127	482
Stevens	184	146	175	505

Brennan	132	154	140	426
Total				2320

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD.
By United Press.

Yesterday's hero—Fred Schulte, St. Louis Browns' outfielder, whose home run in the tenth inning of the second game broke up a pitcher's battle between Grady Adkins of the White Sox and Sam Gray of the Browns, giving St. Louis a 2 to 1 victory. Ted Lyons held the Browns at bay in the first game, the White Sox winning 7 to 2.

The combination of Babe Ruth and Herb Pennock gave the New York Yankees a 4 to 0 victory over the Washington Senators. Babe drove in three runs, hit his nineteenth home run of the season and narrowly missed his twentieth being thrown out at the plate when he attempted to stretch a triple. Pennock allowed only five hits, winning his eighth game in nine starts.

The up and coming Detroit Tigers kicked the Cleveland Indians over again, hammering Shaute and Buckeye for 16 hits and a 9 to 4 victory.

After losing seven games to the St. Louis Cardinals, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat them for the first time this season, 3 to 2.

George Sisler drove in four runs and the Boston Braves beat the Phillies for the fourth straight time 9 to 4.

No other games were played.

Car Left in Front of Barrett Home

An old Dodge coupe, without any license numbers, was left in front of the Ellwood Barrett home on West Fourth street some time after 11 o'clock last night, he reported today.

The car was still there at noon today. The sheriff's office was notified this afternoon.

Leaves to Take Pastorate.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Tebow left this morning for Malvern, Ia., where Mr. Tebow has accepted a call as pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Wait Word From Italia in Arctic

Tammany Hall Leader Called by Committee

New York, June 1.—George W. Olvany, grand sachem of Tammany Hall, was subpoenaed today to appear before the Senate campaign investigating committee, but his office notified the committee that he had left the city on a fishing trip and would not be back until Monday.

Before the afternoon hearing opened a subpoena also was issued for Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, a Smith leader, and Oscar R. Miller, civic leader of Albany, N. Y., who has meen issuing pamphlets charging Smith with receiving campaign contributions in the past from brewers.

The subpoena for Olvany was issued because of charges made the committee by Senator Heflin of Alabama and others that Tammany was playing an active part in the campaign of Gov. Al Smith.

The committee will decide later whether it will remain over until Monday to hear the Tammany leader.

Douglas J. Wolff, of the Hoover-for-Presidential Teritorial davisory committee here, notified the committee he had no information of value and that in his place Thomas H. Ormstee would appear to testify about the committee's activities.

Thomas P. Moffatt, manager of the Lowden--for--President headqdarters here, was called as the first witness.

Says All Delegates Not Accounted For

Smith Backer Charges North Carolina Election Was Incorrectly Reported.

New York, June 1. — Inferential charges that recent county convention results in North Carolina were "incorrectly reported" were made before the Senate campaign investigating committee today by George Gordon Battle, attorney, who spent $3,500 into the state in behalf of Gov. Al Smith.

When pressed for details, Battle said his private information indicated a larger number of Smith delegates were selected than was reported. He said he believed the North Carolina delegation at Houston would be a Smith delegation.

He declined to specify any person who misrepresented the results, but said his charge was based upon conjecture founded upon private reports.

PLANE TO HONOLULU

But the population of Honolulu was determined to make it as big an event as when the two successful planes in the Dole race from the mainland last summer came swooping down on Wheeler Field.

A committee of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce will take charge of the four aviators when they land and rush them to Waikiki Beach, where they will rest, preparatory to hopping off for Suva, in the Fiji Islands.

The plane will be inspected and refueled by mechanics attached to the army flying station here.

Clouds "Fool" Them.

Another message received by the mutual wireless company at 8:40 a. m. Hawaiian time (11:20 a. m. P. S. T.) said:

"These clouds again fooling us."

This was taken to mean that the Southern Cross was again correcting its position and changing course.

It was considered probable that the "Maunakea" previously reported sighted by the Australian plane had proved to be horizon clouds and not the Hawaiian mountain.

Another message intercepted by the mutual wireless company at 8:55 a. m. Hawaiian time (11:25 a. m. P. S. T.) said:

"We only got one more hour gas."

Apprehension increased throughout Honolulu as the flight went into its thrilling finish, in a race against time and diminishing fuel.

The United States battle fleet, widely scattered on maneuvers in Hawaiian waters, was keeping close radio contact with the progres s of the Southern Cross.

Gerald Phipps, British consul, arrived at Wheeler Field early today to greet the four airmen on behalf of the British Empire.

Shortly after dawn theer were thousands at the flying field and all roads leading to the field were crowded with traffic.

Sister Institutes Search For Glen Farquhar, Missing 1 Year

The disappearance of Glen Farquhar, the 15-year-old adopted son of Mrs. Alma Farquhar, of Elmo, the last week of June last year, still remains a mystery.

Glen, who was then 14, disappeared from Mrs. Farquhar's home on June 25, 1927, and no word has been heard from him since. Now his sister, Viola Hauser, 1544 C. street, Lincoln, Nebr., has taken up the search.

His sister has written to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune for help and asked that an advertisement be inserted in the paper. She states that she had not seen her brother for eight years but wrote Glen Farquhar is of light complexion and quite tall for his age.

The boy was adopted from an orphan's home eight years ago by Mrs. Farquhar of Elmo, who is a widow.

When Glen disappeared Mrs. Farquhar could not assign any reason for him leaving home. He was in the eighth grade and had a good attendance record. The boy took some of his belongings, including a suit, when he left Elmo.

The sheriff here was asked to aid in the search for the lad but his whereabouts never has been found. Mrs. Farquhar said over the telephone today no word has been learned of her adopted son since he left nearly a year ago.

Glen's sister wrote she wanted anyone who had seen him to write her concerning him.

The Fifth Plane to Arrive at Honolulu

7 of 15 Fliers Previously Attempting Pacific Flight Perished.—One Victim a Woman.

San Francisco, June 1.—The Southern Cross, which carried Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and three companions from Oakland Airport to Honolulu, was the fifth airplane to succeed in a non-stop flight over the hazardous course between the United States and Hawaii.

Only eight out of fifteen fliers who previously had attempted the feat survived. Of the seven who perished in the Pacific, one was a woman. Three were killed in preparing for the flight.

Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, pilot, and Lieut. Albert J. Hegenberger, army air corps fliers, were the first to conquer the Pacific by air. Using a plane similar to Captain Kingsford-Smith's, they flew over virtually the same course, landing at Wheeler Field June 29, 1927.

Arthur K. Goebel and Lieut. William V. Davis, winners of the James D. Dole race, were the second pair to arrive. Flying the Woolaroc, a monoplane, they arrived at Wheeler field August 17 and won the $25,000 first prize in the race.

Martin Jensen of Honolulu and Paul Schluter of San Francisco, winners of the $10,000 second prize in the Dole race, arrived later the same day.

Ernest L. Smith and Emory B. Bronte, California aviators, were the last to make the flight until today. They left Oakland in a small monoplane hoping to make Honolulu, but were forced down on the Leper Island of Molokai July 14 by a fuel shortage.

The Golden Gate, manned by John W. Frost of New York and Gordon Scott of Santa Monica, one of the Dole contestants, was never heard from after it passed out over San Francisco Bay.

The Miss Doran, another entry in the race, was last sighted over the Paralion Islands. In it were Miss Mildred Doran Flint, school teacher; John A. Pedlar, pilot, and Lieut. Vilas R. Knope of San Diego, naval flier acting as navigator.

Capt. William P. Erwin of Dallas, Tex., and Alvin H. Sichwaldt, navigator, set out August 18 in search of the missing Dole fliers, but struck rough air currents in the mid-Pacific and went down to the waves in a tailspin.
